THE BLOOMFIELD RECORD.

Edited at the Post Office at Bloomfield, N. J., as second class mail matter.

Bloomfield Record.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., JUNE 10, 1882.

GARIBOLDI.

The great men of our time—great in letters, in science and in the state—are dropping off. Intellect, genius, position, wealth are powerless to retain them beyond their allotted time. Their names, already inscribed on the roll of fame, are being made more conspicuous as about them is twined the funeral wreath. LONGFELLOW, EMERSON and DARWIN, in the world of letters and science, have recently passed from earth. Now the decease of GARIBOLDI, the impetuous, fearless warrior, the lover of freedom and the devoted patriot, is chronicled. His brilliant career reads like a romance. Ever ready to assail the enemy, however inferior the force he commanded; often victorious than defeated, he gained by his intrepidity and skill the recognition of a great general—contending, anon, against such powers as Austria and France. In all his adventures when others were ready to yield he never surrendered. The friend of Mazzini and Rossi, and, last, of VICTOR EMANUEL, he did more for the liberty and unification of Italy than any other man, securing for his country the first parliament ever called together on Italian soil. Honored in England, France and Italy, the friends of freedom in America will not be slowest in yielding the recognition of his worth.

COLONEL INGERSOLL IN NEW YORK.

The question has, doubtless, risen in many minds, "Why was Colonel INGERSOLL selected to give the oration on Decoration Day in New York?" Why should this foremost place have been assigned to such a one at a time when an unusual effort was being made to commemorate the valor of our hero-fdead? It surely could not have been because of any distinguished service rendered by him—so far as we have record—in the war. We can scarcely conclude that the intention was to honor a man for his pronounced infidelity, although some pains were taken by the one presiding at the exercises in the Academy of Music to excite ridicule at the mention of religion. The presumption is that he was made orator of the day in view of his conceded eloquence.

But none who attended the ceremonies can have failed to notice the attempt made to glorify the man. Pamphlets full of his infidel notions, of the "Toms" Paine offered, were on sale outside of the building, together with photographs of the "illustrious" speaker. INGERSOLL was pleased so to the front that Christian citizens who desired to witness the gathering of veterans and eminent generals, and to participate in doing honor to our country dead, were rather ashamed to attend or were indignant at the parade of one who is doing all in the power of his tongue to undermine those principles of religion which, according to the judgment of a Washington and Webster, a Lincoln and Garfield, and others, who have deserved better of their countrymen than Mr. INGERSOLL, lie at the foundation of the well-being and prosperity of the Republic while the triumph of his ideas would relegated us to the condition of the French Republic of the last century.

When the time came in the exercises at the Academy of Music for the oration, there were cries of "GRANT! GRANT!" who, with conspicuous modesty, had taken his seat on the platform. The call was scarcely restrained by the presiding officer, and when Mr. INGERSOLL was announced some "religious" friends exerted themselves to the utmost to extort the man. The call for cheers was so freely responded that it needed to be renewed. If poor taste was shown in the choice of a blatant infidel as the orator of the day, worse judgement was manifest in those who took advantage of the occasion to make a hero of the man.

It must be manifest to the most devoted Republican that President ARTHUR is not meeting the expectations indulged immediately after the death of President GARFIELD. He is not proving himself to be a great statesman, but only the careful politician. His success in partisan management in the politics of New York is no guarantee of like success in the aims of his administration as President. The persistent course pursued of setting aside "Garfield Republicans" for "Stalwarts" is fraught with continued discord in a party which can afford to be anything but a unit. Beyond thus doing no one expects any great mistakes on the part of Mr. ARTHUR. If he does nothing very good, the other hand he is not likely to do anything very bad.

The eyes of the world are being turned towards Egypt—that old, historic land, with a magnificient past and possessing grand possibilities for the future, yet lying in the present under a political curse. What will be the outcome of the present trouble may not be definitely told, but the time cannot long be postponed when the land of the Nile and adjacent countries will be brought under the dominion and rule of a Christian civilization. It is to be hoped that this may be accomplished in the pathway of political justice and moral right. The present aspect of affairs points to war which may involve more than the forces now facing each other at Alexandria. If this takes place Turkish authority will probably cease to have even a name in the country of the PHARAOHS. Mankind will have no reason to deplore such a result.

THE RIBBON MANUFACTURE OF ST. ETIENNE.

It may be safely said that St. Etienne is the largest ribbon producing town in the world. In speaking of ribbons, we mean all productions of the small ware looms, in which more than two pieces are woven at one time, and which include ladies' scarfs, ties, and similar goods. This industry is, with few exceptions, quite a domestic one. St. Etienne and district employs about 17,000 looms, of which only about 1,500 are driven by mechanical means, say 1,000 by water, and 500 by steam power. These 1,500 looms, which partly plain silk ribbons, and partly velvet ribbons, the latter numbering about 600. Most of the weavers have not more than three looms, more frequently only one or two. Generally the master works one and the members of his family the others; sometimes he has a dozen or more. A weaver's shop is usually a room of the school which will be confined in the Park, and the schools will be entertained with refreshments on the Park.

It is earnestly hoped that every member of each school will endeavor to be present and participate in all the exercises, and that the interest and enthusiasm manifested on this occasion will be as great as possible.

The following gentlemen were elected Trustees of the Montcalm Presbyterian Church at the annual meeting held last Monday evening: Abram Bussing, E. J. Huiles, Geo. H. Mills, F. S. Smith.

The annual sermon before the students of the German Theological School will be delivered to-morrow evening by the Rev. George C. Schellert, Ph. D., at the German Presbyterian Church.

R. V. Harnett, auctioneer, will offer for sale on Tuesday next two hundred choice building lots at Roselle, N. J. Particulars may be found in the advertisement inserted elsewhere.

An organ concert will be given at the Montcalm Congregational Church on the 23rd instant, with those principally at three o'clock, and the Schools will participate in the exercises. The meetings will close promptly at three o'clock, and the Schools then form in procession. The march will be confined in the Park, and the schools will be entertained with refreshments on the Park.

In the course of his remarks, the Bishop expressed his gratification at seeing so large an audience, whose presence was a proof that they took a deep interest in educational matters.

The Church of God, he said, has always considered education one of the most important things. If the boasted enlightenment of the nineteenth century possesses knowledge, we have the Church of God to thank for so great a blessing.

The Bishop rejoiced that the Catholics of Bloomfield were alive to the importance of securing proper instruction for their children.

The Church of God, he said, has been engaged in a strenuous effort to secure the services of a competent teacher.

The subject of the sermon at the Baptist Church to-morrow night will be—"Theatre-going: Is It Right?"

Mr. W. A. Baldwin will accompany Rev. H. W. Ballantine on his trip to Europe next month.

Mr. E. Wildie is now offering at his store great bargains in straw goods.

The present issue of the New Jersey State Journal contains a special number, the new post wash.
